3. [redacted] of NSA called. They had met with the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee and [redacted] indicated the session had gone reasonably well. There were very few questions on the [redacted] case as such and they stated they were not in fact investigating the case but were attempting to learn security procedures of various agencies. Apparently there will be another session on this. They have not yet met again with NCUA and expect that they will be called some time in the near future.

5. [redacted] Boyd Crawford, Staff Director of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, called again with regard to the case of [redacted] (Crawford had heard a news program which gave the impression that four additional Castro prisoners had been executed.) I told Crawford it was my information that this was merely a recapitulation of the action previously taken several days ago and did not involve any new executions. [redacted] will keep us informed of any changes in connection with this case.
